CADETS WITHOUT PLACES.

ONLY ONE-FOURTH OF THE GRADUATING CLASS TO GET COMMISSIONS.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—A report from the Secretary of War to the Speaker of the House and the Vice-President of the United States Commissioner Partridge Thornton-ton to Make Improvement for Admiral Dewey.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—A report made this afternoon that the Secretary of War would shortly issue an order dismissing three cadets at the academy at West Point, who have been found deficient in their studies, has caused considerable excitement among the cadets. There will then be another vacancy in the corps of cadets, and as there are a number of "bilges" entitled to appointments to the several branches of the service, the failing to pass examinations will make a number of the disappointed young graduates ready to leave for Washington to try to get a berth. As in the case of the graduates from the Naval Academy, those who graduate from West Point are commissioned as second lieutenants, Washington is their haunt.

The New England service papers, the Army and Navy Gazette, which is edited by Bull Run Russell, has been trying for several months to create public sentiment in England in the interests of the American steamship combine. This is true in one sense, and in another it is the embryonic state of affairs similar to the American colonial days when as to those of Great Britain.

The issue of an honor and efficient cadet corps is a question which will not longer be ignored by the American people. It is interesting to note the efforts that have been made to the Congressional reports and hearings. It is the duty of the Secretary of War to see that the cadets are properly instructed in the duties of officers, and that they are not overworked in their studies to the detriment of their health. Some years ago, as the result of a Congressional investigation, a board of officers was appointed by the President of the United States to examine into the course of instruction at the Military Academy at West Point, and to report to the Secretary of War what changes, if any, were necessary to be made in the course of instruction. This board was composed of the most distinguished officers of the army, and their report, which was submitted to Congress, was the result of the most careful and thorough investigation of the subject. Many of the recommendations of this board have been adopted, but there are still others pending which ought to be adopted. Nothing of a partisan nature should enter into this investigation, for the good of the United States has always been the object of the Congressional committees which have had the matter under consideration have reject any confusing opinions as to the effects of the law before it was enacted, and people had not overcome their prejudices. The law had been in operation for so short a time for anybody to state that it was the cause of splendid or horrible.

"How about Mr. Cleveland?"

"I am reiterating now . . . for the sake well, I do not see any one is right," replied the Governor.

A SENSATION IN SOCIETY.

A Popular Young Man of Oakville the Hero of a Scandal.

CLEVELAND, Tenn., May 28.—J. D. Hamilton, head of a wholesale hardware firm here, was badly wounded last night in a difficulty said due to the favor of the actress. It is said the cause of the quarrel, upon which he had entered to get a bucket of water, were words which resulted in a shot in return. Five shots were exchanged at short range. Hamilton was shot in the left and a bullet perforated his hat. The other man was not struck. The wounded man resides in the town of Oakville, which lies on the suburbs of the city in which newspapers have appeared. Every effort was made to conceal the identity, to going on to the 27th, but the removal out of the city by the principal members, and the name of the quarrel. The circumstances have not been made to appear, but have been unable to prevent the discovery of it. The facts sought great excitement. Hamilton is a business worthy and popular man, and strong in financial circles as well as society, where he is a leader in fashionable circles. He has support of a handsome young lady, a member of one of the prominent families in the town. It is confidently said that he meant to wreck to the ruin and that he now has at the home of his mother.

STANDARD STOCKS FORCED TO THE OPENS OF 1893 LOWS.

Proof That the Inter-State Commerce Law Has Not Injured the Railroad Business.—Fight Among Speculators Has Shaken the Market.—Development of the Coming Year Has Also Attracted Much Public Attention.—Prospects Good for Investment.—The Clearing-House and Foreign Exchanges.

NEW YORK, May 27.—[Special.]—The Financial article says: People who have been waiting for what they considered evidence of a solid bull movement in the market, to lay an advance in the price of the standard stocks, the strongest investment securities of the country, are not satisfied. So long as the market was prone over to the bulls, and of course they were favorable, and properly so; for the argument was, that as the instantaneous position represented those great properties which must necessarily be among the first to feel the benefit in increasing earnings of a real improvement in the condition of the country, the fact that those stocks made scarcely any movement was at least presumptive evidence that the improvement talked of was more speculative than real. It is the class of stocks which are not moving forward rapidly enough to attract general attention, the rag trade is saying that they have been moving so far ahead, but by such slow degrees that they scarcely amount to more or at all compared with the most lightest trades. The Sugar market has favored some striking examples of the growing demand for the big dividend payers, the stocks of the New England railroads having attracted to such big figures that it would seem only millionaires could afford to buy them. In our own market such stocks as Fulton, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Rock Island, Reformed, and some others of that class have been in steady demand and the buying of all classes of bonds is excellent. The power that the Inter-State law has upon operations of the Inter-State railroads has been great, however, and railroad men have taken courage. They feel that the law is working until and giving business to everybody in crowding. Railroad earnings are growing correspondingly. In the month of April the earnings of a large group of representative roads increased in the aggregate 21 per cent, as compared with last year, with an increase of only 1 per cent in mileage. The record for this month so far is quite as good. Since the securities representing these properties are attracting so much favor, another effect of the is that new enterprises are sought out to see what good something upon the road, from the owners where the standard stocks and roads are. This is going on in land of growing prosperity, and the people have been in a condition of prosperity and have been in a condition of prosperity and prosperity and prosperity and St. Louis was visited by an electric storm yesterday afternoon. Two persons were killed, several were injured, and residences to the amount of [illegible] were damaged.

Archbishop Feehan has appointed the Rev. Dr. Theobald J. Heiss, dean of Rockford, pastor of St. John's parish in this city, on the succession of the late Father John Walshe.

Vice Consul of Esquia, Fla., who was married Saturday of the murder of L. D. Collier, one of the Key West fishers, attempted to take his own life yesterday by shooting himself in the head. He will recover.

Prominent citizens of Waterville, O., have formed a new plan to defeat the Sub License law. They have organized among private clubs to encourage drinking, during which they purchase a large amount of liquor.

Queen Victoria of England and Prince William of Prussia are having letters to his newspaper concerning their recent visit to Rome. In praise the cordiality and hospitality of the people of Italy, which, he said, exceeded his most fondest anticipations.

On the London Stock Exchange during the last week a moderate amount of business was done, and there was a general advance in prices. American railroad securities showed a marked increase in strength owing to an advance in a rumor [illegible].

A report comes from Annapolis that the final graduating class of cadets at the naval academy will number thirty-two. The men that are still at there will go commissioned after their two years at sea. There will then be another considerable batch of "plebes" will also to take care of in the various branches of the service.

The Southern Democratic newspapers are commenting in precise English upon the Harrison-Tanner incident. They have very little to say about the "savior of the valley," or the people over which the people of that section already has to wear as long a letter runner than the level, but confine themselves to hunting epithets and blandishments directed against Gov. Hoard, which seem to be a hot grass from Mr. Cleveland's New South. The Charleston News and Courier denounces Hoard as a "Yankee Radical," and the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph suggests it might be profane for the Virginians to "keep their eyes down the barrels of their guns, and bite the nose into the seventeen" on the approach. At this latest news there was an outlet's play about Little Pete instead of making war, Grant's other. The low down people of the Stewart, W. & E. Lancaster, who was the military telegraph operator at New Creek Station, Va., when it was natural to Lamar to Tennessee, 1864, thus describes his experience:

I was taken to with quite a number of other Virginia prisoners and stationed near the depot, guarded by soldiers, awaiting further orders. Soon after dark, I was ordered to get my blankets and fall in line with the other prisoners, and was marched to the depot, where we were loaded into box cars (freight cars), and started on our journey. We were not informed as to our destination, but we soon found out that we were being taken to Wheeling, W. Va., where we arrived about 10 o'clock the next morning. We were then marched to the Custom House, where we were kept under guard all day. We were then taken to the jail, where we were kept for about two weeks, when we were taken to Camp Chase, Columbus, O., where we were kept for about two months, when we were taken to Johnson's Island, Sandusky Bay, Lake Erie, where we were kept for about six months, when we were taken to Point Lookout, Md., where we were kept for about two months, when we were taken to Richmond, Va., where I was exchanged in February, 1865, after having been a prisoner of war for about one year.

Several have started in the interests of Bismarck's paper, the Cologne Gazette, of the town, although not on the part of the Australian papers, but on the part of the Australian people. Statesmen of the Australian colonies must have to some extent adjusted their views to the opinions of different countries from that which they have been accustomed to in the colonies, who spoke with some authority to a close student of party politics and party.

In taking up the important question of the Irish question, which is now the most important question of the day, I have to say that the Irish people are not in favor of the Irish question, but are in favor of the Irish question, and

SUNDAY MORNING'S NEWS.

THE CITY.

IN GENERAL

Ex-Vice-Consul James H. Beck of Kentucky is at the Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Tracy of Cambridge, Mass., the latter a daughter of the poet Longfellow, and Mrs. Ole Bull, widow of the great violinist, are at the Richelieu.

"Hagenow," one of the Indian chiefs in Pennsylvania's "Wild West" show, and executive officials on one of the men at the belt of Wild Horse, arrived, Dr. Frances Dickey, who owned and the lady, and inquiring for the owner of them.

A new Presbyterian church was organized yesterday in Kenwood Hall, corner Madison street and Evergreen avenue. The opening services were conducted by the Rev. J. G. Lyon of Rockford, at the close of the services a Sunday-school was organized, with Mr. Lyon as superintendent.

The steam, with its red and gilt-edged engine, white seats, its elaborate, elaborate cranks, and bronze and enamelled other trimmings, is the heart of the small but the delightful spring cars, and the rest of Kennedy has gone to work. Every one of the cars is provided with a motor, and the cars are run by the motor. The opening took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the presence of a large number of people. The cars run from Lake street, and a passenger is to be carried for 5 cents. The same fare is charged on the cable cars.

Clara Waddell, a school woman, 70 years old, hanged herself with a piece of clothes line to a hook on the door frame of her room in the rear of the old West Lake street police station, Friday morning. When she failed to appear at 9 o'clock in the morning the lady with whom she had been boarding for the past month or two went to her room and found her hanging. She had been in the habit of getting her meals outside. She was an inmate of the Old Ladies' Home, and had been supported by the Relief and Aid Society for the last three years. Her parents are supposed to reside somewhere in Scotland, but she refused to have them notified.

A ragged and dirty man, whose physical appearance does not speak in his favor with people of a sober mind, entered the White Star lodging-house on St. Clair street, near the river, yesterday afternoon. After having a considerable talk with the proprietor, he got a compliment to wash, and in a short while was scrubbing away for dear life. He had been at work about half an hour when the lodging-house keeper was startled by the loud shout of the man, who was standing in the middle of the room, and who, when he had succeeded in attracting the landlord's attention, pointed to the floor, and exclaimed: "I have found, sure enough, the long-lost Lincoln penny!" He had been in luck.

The Appointment of Father Waldron's successor.

Archbishop Feehan has appointed the Rev. Dr. Waldron, pastor of Kenilworth, parish of St. John's Parish in this city, as the successor of the late Father John Waldron. Dr. Waldron is well known in Chicago, where he has spent most of his active life. He has been connected with various city parishes in the capacity of parish priest, pastor, &c. For many years he was Archbishop's Secretary, during the time he was also a member of the Board of Education. He was also Vicar-General of the Archdiocese. He was also Vicar-General of the Archdiocese. He was also Vicar-General of the Archdiocese
